Scripture

9 I wrote to you in an letter not to company with fornicators: Deut 7:2; Matt 18:17; 2Cor 6:14; Eph 5:11; 2Thess 3:14; 10 Yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortionists, or with idolaters; for then must you needs go out of the world. 11 But now I have written to you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a reviler, or a drunkard, or an extortionist; with such an one no not to eat. Num 12:14; Matt 18:17; 2Thess 3:14; 2John 1:10; 12 For what have I to do to judge them also that are without? do not you judge them that are within? 13 But them that are without God judges. Therefore put away from among yourselves that wicked person. Deut 13:5;

One of the members of the church was openly living in sin with his father's wife, and the church, instead of administering discipline, was proud of their broadmindedness in harboring such a person. Paul directed that this man be delivered to Satan (v. 5) that is, formally excommunicated from the church, to serve as an example that would keep practices such as this (as well as the dangerous open-mindedness) from spreading, and also in hope of bringing the guilty party to repentance. This case is referred to again in 2 Corinthians 2.

(Halley's Bible Handbook; 2000; history and commentaries; page 779)

God protects us from many attacks of Satan (Job 1:10). The man involved in incest would reap the consequences of his sin when the church separated him from the protection of fellowship. The church had been proud of its tolerance toward the man. The word translated fornicators in the Greek means male prostitutes. Paul knew the Christians would be around wicked people as long as they existed in this world, but he warned that evil men shouldn't be allowed to remain in the church.

Tolerance—Webster's Dictionary.....

1. (n.) The capacity of enduring; forbearance of the differences of others.
2. (n.) The endurance of the presence or actions of objectionable persons, or of the expression of offensive opinions; toleration.
3. (n.) The power possessed or acquired by some persons of bearing doses of medicine which in ordinary cases would prove injurious or fatal.

14 Now thanks be to God, which always causes us to triumph in Christ, and makes manifest the aroma of his knowledge by us in every place. Col 1:27; 15 For we are to God a sweet smell of Christ, in them that are saved, and in them that perish: 16 To the one we are the smell of death to death; and to the other the smell of life to life. And who is sufficient for these things? Luke 2:34; 17 For we are not as many, which corrupt the word of God: but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ.

2 Corin. 2:14-17
